Jacob is co-leader of Eckenhoff Saunders' Workplace + Commercial market and brings experience from various architectural project types, including hotels, international healthcare facilities, high-end residential, and mixed-use developments.

His knowledge of architecture and construction has been developed locally and abroad in Chicago, San Diego, Michigan, and Haiti, where he developed the largest hospital in Mirebalais. He brings diverse insights and abilities to all projects at Eckenhoff Saunders, specializing in schematic project design and conceptualization, building core and shell development, and passive sustainability practices.

Jacob also served as Project Architect for the recently completed Hyatt House Chicago/West Loop-Fulton Market mixed-use development. He was integrally involved in the project from its inception to construction, working closely with the client and contractor.
